COURSES TAUGHT AT UNM

APMS 101-502, Sect. 032: Percussion

Oversee and instruct graduate and undergraduate percussion performance, education, and Bachelor of Arts majors and music minors.

MUS 391/491/591, Sect. 032: Junior/Senior/Graduate Recital: Percussion

MUS 560, Sect. 090: Chamber Music - Percussion Ensemble

Graduate Student Percussion Ensemble. Graduate students are encouraged to work on their own while being coached by a faculty member. The focus of the group is to perform current trio and quartet literature.

MUS 231, Sect. 090: Chamber Music - Percussion Ensemble

This is the major chamber ensemble for the undergraduate percussion major. Students perform contemporary percussion repertoire, mallet ensemble repertoire and various folkloric percussion styles including West and East African, Afro-Cuban, Middle Eastern, and Brazilian drumming. This ensemble performs two concerts a year on campus and performs off campus for recruiting purposes.

UNM Marimba Band

The UNM Marimba Band is made up of both undergraduate and graduate students. The marimba band presents concerts in Albuquerque as well as throughout New Mexico and the Southwest. This ensemble specializes in traditional Mexican marimba music as well as the ragtime music of George Hamilton Green and many contemporary mallet arrangements.

MUS 449-549, Sect. 006: Percussion Repertoire

The primary goal is to increase awareness and understanding of the evolution of percussion repertoire, through a study of major 20th and 21st century composers who have contributed greatly to the genre.

MUSE 155, Sect. 004: Orchestral Instruments - Percussion

Music education majors are taught basic performance and teaching techniques on snare drum, mallets, bass drum, cymbals, small percussion, folkloric percussion and timpani to be used in K-12 teaching.

APMS 141, Sect. 001: Popular World Music

Online course. This course provides an introduction into popular music from around the world, focusing on developing listening skills through the examination of popular world music, its history and significance in the realm of world music.
