Arts Management Minor

2016-2017 UNM Catalog

The College of Fine Arts offers a minor in Arts Management (AM) which provides students with an educational foundation to explore current and emerging professional practices. The AM minor provides a foundation to understanding the economic contributions the arts and artists make to local and state economies. Faculty and instructors have extensive professional experience in their fields, offering students exposure to their arts organizations and businesses, as well as professional networks and resources. The AM minor has the dual purpose of providing students with practical management skills in preparation for entry-level positions in the creative economy or further study in any number of nationally known Arts Management graduate programs.

The core for the Arts Management minor is 15 credit hours. Each of the five core courses uses a problem-based and/or case study approach to gain real-world exposure to current arts management issues. Arts Management electives are offered through topics, problems, and investigation courses that rotate offerings that explore both non-profit and for-profit arts management structures. In addition, the AM minor requires a rigorous internship with an arts organization to gain work training under the mentorship of a professional arts leader. Through course work and internship opportunities, students are better prepared to make informed decisions about career choices in the complex environment of the creative economy.

The Arts Management minor is possible through the collaboration of the College of Arts and Sciences, and the Anderson School of Management.

Before declaring an Arts Management minor, students must have completed the UNM core requirement in fine arts (for non-art majors a studio course in any arts discipline; for arts majors a studio course outside of the student's fine arts major) and FA 250. Once these requirements are met, it is recommended the student contact the program supervisor to set up an appointment to initiate the AM Progress Worksheet to track course work and learn about upcoming arts management electives that may be relevant to the student's internship and career plans.

The Arts Management minor requires students to participate in an internship experience for three credit hours; however, students can take up to six credit hours of internship. The College of Fine Arts offers a variety of internship opportunities working under the mentorship of faculty and professional staff that exposes the student to standards of professional behavior, principles, and practice. The unique internship opportunities the College has to offer include: UNM Art Museum, Rodey Theatre, Theatre-X, Popejoy Theatre, Keller Music Hall, John Sommers Gallery, Tamarind Institute, CFA Development Office, or with programs such as Words Afire, Experiments in Film, or Arts in Medicine. Students taking an additional three credit hours of internship are encouraged to take their second internship off-campus. The program's supervisor arranges an internship in consultation with the student or the student can identify a potential internship site that compliments his/her career interests. Off-campus internships are encouraged so that students can begin to make professional contacts in the career field of their interest.

To initiate an internship, students must submit an Arts Management Internship application available through the CFA Advisement Office or download it from the Arts Management Web site. After submission, students should schedule an appointment with the program's supervisor to determine that the prerequisites have been met. Once students have been approved, they can register for FA *495 Arts Management Internship.

NOTE: FA *495 is a restricted course which requires departmental permission for registration. Application for an AM internships must be submitted the semester prior to the internship (January 10th for Spring Semester; May 15th for Summer Session; August 1st for Fall Semester).
